

Application form for listing under the “European Heritage Label” scheme

28/09/06

Country
Region/province
Name of the cultural property <sup>1</sup> , monument, natural or urban site <sup>2</sup> , or site that has played a key role in European history.
Owner of the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history
Public or private authorities responsible for the site or property (delegated management)
Postal address	For objects, conservation sites
Geographic coordinates of the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history	Map
Reasons for listing	How is this heritage site/object, which has played a key role in European history, emblematic of European identity? Which listing criteria does it fulfil (see criteria listed under “Heritage Committee of Europe”, article 5 of the rules of procedure)?
Description of the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history	Site/object fact sheet: - important characteristics of the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history, and its constituent parts - dates: principal periods of construction, or development (objects) if labelling relates to a cross-border site: what other sites are proposed?
History of the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history	How did the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history achieve its present form and state? Has it changed significantly (include a description of recent conservation measures)?
System of protection of the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that	Legislative status

<sup>1</sup> The term “cultural property” refers to an object that is emblematic of European history

<sup>2</sup> A “site” can be a place, building or structure, or a landscape, etc., including any non-physical heritage associated with the site

has played a key role in European history, if appropriate
State of preservation of the site/object	How is the cultural property, monument, natural or urban site, or site that has played a key role in European history used and managed? What state of conservation is it in? Is there a risk of deterioration? How?
Policy to promote and enhance the appreciation of the site/property (detail actions already performed and required)	Action taken to enhance the cultural properties, monuments, natural and urban sites, or sites that have played a key role in European history, including site adaptation and visitor tools. Public accessibility policy. At least three EU languages used for documents, signs, etc. Information provided: does the content promote an appreciation of the European identity of the site/object? Activities aimed at local visitors, and French and overseas tourists intended to strengthen the sense of European identity and citizenship? Does this programme promote the role played by the site/property in European history? Are these activities aimed at strengthening citizens' understanding of, and respect and support for, European heritage? Are cultural guides trained in European heritage available?
Cultural exchanges and networking	How will the cultural properties, monuments, natural or urban sites, or sites that have played a key role in European history form part of cross-border or transnational European exchange networks? Do they benefit from cooperation between players in the private and public cultural sphere, local authorities, or national and European Union institutions?
Heritage and creative activities	Do the listed cultural properties, monuments, natural or urban sites, or sites that have played a key role in European history promote a range of artistic and cultural activities (events, festivals, artist-in-residence schemes) in order to strengthen the mobility of artists in Europe and to foster an on-going dialogue between heritage and creative activities?
Sources and level of finance	Budget and sources of finance for the conservation of the cultural properties, monuments, natural and urban sites, or sites that have played a key role in European history, and for the promotion strategy.

Activities taken/planned to heighten the profile and representativeness of the site

2 copies (paper and electronic) of this application for inclusion on the heritage label list should be sent to the national committee (contact details) before .

Enclose as attachments:

Photos of the cultural properties, monuments, natural and urban sites, or sites that have played a key role in European history.

Map

Selection of films, educational and scientific publications, leaflets, etc.